

DIAMOND CLUB COLLEGE RECRUITING

Baseball Recruiting – Be Pro-Active!

College coaches depend highly on reliable sources to identify possible recruits! Initial exposure usually is the result of a contact from the reliable source, which is then followed up by receiving information either on video or a personal contact. Coaches frequently rely on ‘word of mouth’ and video evaluations prior to any live evaluation. Many college baseball prospects are identified as early as 12-13 years old, or middle school grades. Studies show that 84% of potential NCAA I prospects are identified prior to their junior year of high school.

Our goal is to assist college baseball prospects with the recruiting process, evaluate each individual player, and offer a program that gets our prospects recognized! There are over 1500 college institutions that offer collegiate baseball, 906 NCAA, 208 NAIA, and 398 Junior College programs. Diamond Clubs goal is to get our prospects name to collegiate programs that will best fit the players’ athletic and academic potential.
